Treatwell

Full Stack Engineer - Growth & Marketing

The opportunity to contribute to Treatwell's marketplace growth aligns perfectly with my background in building end-to-end production-grade applications. Having developed full-stack projects from database schema to UI, I thrive on the challenge of connecting customer intent with seamless booking experiences. My experience building scalable web solutions has taught me that the best technical decisions are rooted in a deep understanding of the user journey, a mindset I am eager to apply to your SEO and conversion initiatives. My technical toolkit includes Java and Spring Boot for robust backend services, alongside React and TypeScript for creating high-performance user interfaces. I am also well-versed in testing methodologies like Cypress, ensuring that the features I ship are reliable and maintainable. Beyond the code, I am passionate about data-driven development and have successfully integrated AI-driven features into my own projects, which I believe will be an asset in supporting Treatwell's experimentation and marketing goals. I am a fast learner who enjoys navigating complex domains and collaborating across teams to turn ambiguous requirements into clear, impactful engineering solutions. I am based in Spain and fully prepared to bring my proactive, problem-solving approach to your Product Engineering team. I would welcome the chance to discuss how my technical skills and product-focused mindset can help drive Treatwell's growth. Are you available for a brief conversation next week to explore this further?

Atentamente,

Jorge Jaime Sena
